

The Yellow Building

The Yellow Building

Through my window, I see the yellow building.
Every light shining through a window is a whole life.
One by one, the lights are gradually going out.
I see people on the other side.
The sounds of people talking and laughing through the windows give the building warmth and life.
Only a few lights remain.
I try to capture the moments of these residents to preserve them.
Just one last flash of light.
The building goes dark, and those memories go with it.
